BIG 3 MEETING EXPECTED TO BE HELD IN EUROPE

Berlin May Be Scene Of Conference Between June 18 And July 4

MIDDLE EAST SUGGESTED

Idea Not Given Much Weight Because Of Troubles, Distance Involved

LONDON, June 8 — Diplomatic observers speculated today that the big three will meet somewhere in Europe or the Middle East between June 18 and July 4.

Some believed President Truman would meet Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin for the first time in Berlin.

Mr. Truman said yesterday that the meeting would come during the next 40 days. Diplomats in London suggested it most likely would occur between the end of the San Francisco conference—about June 18—and the British general election July 5.

British politicians contended that Churchill's attendance at a big three parley during the election campaign would win votes to the conservative party which he heads. The party would plug the trip as proof of his indispensable role.

Leaders of the opposition labor party said they suspect Churchill will try some diplomatic coup just before the election.

President Truman's 40-day prediction ends July 17, in the period between the chief polling day and the announcement of results July 26. It was thought Churchill would rather turn the big three meeting to good campaign effect than go during the interim when his future status was locked up in ballot boxes.

As for the scene of the meeting, the only fact known officially is that it will be held outside the British Isles.

Speculation that the three leaders would confer in Berlin was extensive. Advocates said Berlin would be a dramatic scene for a victory meeting and also would meet Stalin's known reluctance to travel too far from the Russian sphere.

The Middle East also was a possible meeting place, though a less likely one since the Levant crisis.

The British oppose French proposals for a big five meeting on the middle-eastern situation and might not welcome the presence of top Russian representatives in the region at a time when Gen. Charles de Gaulle is trying to draw the Soviets into a British-French controversy.

Another complicating factor was the health of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. He was taking a complete rest at his country home to recover from a duodenal ulcer and general fatigue. He will be inactive at least another 10 days.

Even after that, it is uncertain that Eden would be in proper physical condition for the difficult trip and intense negotiations.

Churchill depends heavily on Eden and wants him to attend the meeting. If Eden were unable to go minister of state Richard K. Law, former foreign undersecretary, would go in his place.

PRAVDA SCORES BRITISH STAND ON COLONIALS

British Blocked Discussion Of Liberation At Moscow, Writer Charges

REDS BACK U. S. PLAN

Article States Levantine Events Definitely 'Smell Of Oil'

MOSCOW, June 8—Pravda, the organ of the Communist party, asserted today that the British in 1943 blocked discussion at the Moscow conference of an American plan for early liberation of "the entire colonial world" along the lines of the Atlantic Charter.

The assertion was made by A. Leontiev, in the first of a series of articles on colonial problems.

Leontiev said the American plan was supported by the Soviet Union but was not discussed at Moscow because of British objections.

He cited the situation in Syria and Lebanon as the latest example of how rivalries over colonial resources disturb world peace.

e events in Syria and Leb- he said, "according to the foreign press, definitely 'smells of oil'."

"A prominent role in the solution of these international affairs," said the article, "is being played not only by the colonial powers but by the Soviet Union which has always defended the right of peoples for self determination and complete national independence and by the United States which has no considerable colonial possessions and therefore is not interested in preserving the existing colonial system."

However, he said that in colonial discussions at San Francisco the United States had accepted the essentials of the British position.

"The American proposals in 1943," he said, "had the following characteristics: first, they embraced the colonial problem as a whole and unequivocally declared for the granting of independence to all colonial peoples as the purpose of all the Allied nations; second, they proposed a system of international trusteeships be established and applied to a definite group of dependent countries with the purpose of granting them at the earliest time the status of independence."

The article noted that one of the international problems involved was that of the colonies of the nations which had been defeated and that this must be solved in the general task of building a stable peace.

"It is well known," he noted, "how many reefs threatening a stable peace are to be found in the present day colonial system with

BACKGROUND OF GERMAN PROBLEM

WHILE COMPLETE DETAILS concerning the exact manner in which the Allied Control Council will govern Germany remained unsettled, the above map indicates some of the questions involved and shows how Nazi-land was stripped of her conquered territory. Discussions have risen over French control of Cologne and Frankfort, while Russia awaits withdrawal of U. CARRIER PLANES BLAST KYUSHU SUICIDE BASES

Last Nip Pocket On Okinawa Sliced In Two By Hardy American Marines

LUZON LINES BROKEN

37th Division Drives Along Cagayan Valley With Little Resistance

By United Press

The war reached "a very difficult stage" for the Japanese today by Tokyo's admission as their suicide plane bases in the homeland and their suicide soldiers in Okinawa took further beatings.

The Japanese reported that 200 or more carrier-based American planes raided suicide plane bases on the southern home island of Kyushu shortly after noon today.

On Okinawa, the last Japanese pocket had been sliced in two, and Marine and Army troops moved in under clearing skies for the final mopping-up.

The ring drew tighter around Japan as Chinese troops, fighting on the east coast of China opposite Okinawa, fought into the suburbs of Futing to cap an 120-mile drive in three weeks.

Luzon Lines Broken

Japanese lines in northern Luzon, in the Philippines, were broken entirely, for the time being at least. The 37th army division drove along the Cagayan valley with no resistance to speak of in its way. A 13-mile spurt in two days took the 37th within five miles of Bayombong.

Four American divisions closed in for the kill on Okinawa—the 1st and 6th marine divisions and the 7th and 96th army divisions.

Marines Split Pocket

The first Marine Division did the job of cutting the Japanese pocket in two by driving through to the southwest coast at a point 900 yards northwest of the town of Itoman.

On the First's right, the Sixth division was only 3,500 yards away after capturing the town of Gushi.

To their left, the 7th and 96th divisions assaulted the main enemy forces left on the rock table known as the Yaeju-Dake escarpment. The Japanese were fighting here with their backs to the sea.

The 96th division gained 1,000 yards through the hills northeast of Yuza, and there was a possibility they could swing around to flank the enemy positions on the escarpment. The weather was clearing, and a slight hardening of the ground made it possible for the 96th to use tanks.

Japs Dug In

The Seventh division, attacking toward the escarpment on a line running all the way to the sea, reported intense machine gun fire from the Japanese, who were well dug in. Marine dive bombers pounded the hills to drive the Japanese from their caves, and ships offshore added to the tremendous weight of shells thrown at the enemy positions.

Just off Okinawa, O island, little more than a dot even on big maps, was taken with little resistance.

Suicide Attacks Resume

Tokyo claimed that the better weather, which gave the Americans effective air support again, also enabled the Japanese to re-

SHERIFF RIDES BALLOON BOMB

tastic Tall Tales Added To Lore Of West By Jap Missives

WASHINGTON, June 8—Japan's fantastic balloon-bomb attack on this hemisphere is adding a new chapter to the lore of the West.

One western sheriff will be able to brag for the rest of his life that he has ridden something wilder and more dangerous than the most rambunctious bronco that ever threw a cowboy into the cactus.

His is a good one, but it will not be the only tall tale to emerge when the time comes to write more freely about the strange paper-borne bombardment of the U. S.

Nor will the far west be the only source of stories about the big ocean-crossing "Japanese lanterns" with their clever mechanisms and their malevolent cargoes.

The balloons have hit as far east this year as Michigan. They have fallen in Canada and Mexico. And west of the Mississippi they have dumped their incendiaries and explosives here and there.

Planes Shoot Balloons

At least three ballons have fallen in southern California, and in the northwest airplanes have been shooting them down from time to time.

So far the balloon-bombs have done no property damage of consequence. They have, however, killed six persons—a woman and five children who were picnicking near Bly, Ore. With the melting of snow in the mountains, authorities fear other unexploded bombs will get in deadly work unless their finders leave them strictly alone.

For many weeks the Army and Navy have been spreading warnings by word of mouth among school children, civic groups, service clubs and the like. On May 22 they let the whole country in on

DARBY DIEPPE IS FIRST ENTRY IN KENTUCKY DERBY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 8—Darby Dieppe, which likes the muddy going forecast for tomorrow, was the first horse entered today for the 71st running of the Kentucky Derby Saturday.

With the rain which began Wednesday night still falling, Charley Gentry, trainer for Mrs. W. G. Lewis' stable, came in the secretary's office at 7:40 a. m., CWT and dropped the name of his gray three-year-old in the entry box.

Winner of the Blue Grass stakes here last Saturday, Darby Dieppe's odds had dropped to six to one as he was one of the few horses among the probable starters which has shown a definite liking for a heavy track. And with still more rain forecast, it seemed certain that for the first time since 1929 when Clyde Van Dusen came home in front that the Churchill Downs track would be heavy.

LESS THAN HALF B-CARD HOLDERS GET MORE GAS

WASHINGTON, June 8—Only 3,000,000 out of 8,553,200 B-card holders will be eligible for more gasoline Monday when ceilings rise to 650 miles monthly. A rations go up a gallon a week for everybody June 22.

The Office of Price Administration said today that only B-holders whose essential occupational driving needs exceed current "B" ceilings for their regions would be granted increases.

"Other B-holders, such as home-to-work drivers," OPA said, "should not apply for any increases since their applications will have to be rejected and only will add to the work of the local boards."

OPA asked that applications be mailed rather than taken to boards. Increases will be computed from the date on which the application is received on or after June 11.

Persons whose "B" coupons expire within 30 days after application will be issued not only sufficient coupons to supplement those remaining in their present ration, OPA said, but also their next regular three-month rations—to last, of course, for 90 days from the expiration date of current rations.

Others will receive additional coupons for the remaining period covered by present rations.

OPA added that B-6 and C-6 gasoline coupons, which the boards stopped issuing in March, will not be good after June 30. It also said gasoline ration stickers would no longer be required on windshields.

FEW ESCORTED SHIPS SUNK BY NAZI U-BOATS

WASHINGTON, June 8—The Navy revealed today that 17,707 ships escorted by the Atlantic fleet during the "Battle of the Atlantic" only 17 were sunk and 15 damaged by enemy action.

While hundreds of merchant ships were sunk in the Atlantic during the war by German raiders, the great majority of those either were not in a convoy or were in a convoy escorted by units other than the U. S. Navy.

The Navy would up the battle of the Atlantic with the latest figures on the anti-submarine warfare covering the period from Dec. 7, 1941, to May 30, 1945.

It disclosed that it took 3,732 escort trips to convoy the 17,707 ships, each convoy ranging from 24 to 119 vessels with eight or nine escorts.

In protecting their vital shipping lanes the Allies sank more than 700 German submarines during the Atlantic battle. Of these 120 were potted by U. S. ships and planes. The British claim over 500.

At the same time the Navy disclosed that three destroyer escorts had been damaged during the Atlantic sea warfare. They included the Donnell in the North Atlantic in May, 1944, the Holder in the Mediterranean in April, 1944, and the Fogg off the Azores in December, 1944.

GEN. BRADLEY GETS VET POST

One Of War's Top Heroes To Succeed Hines In 30 To 60 Days

WASHINGTON, June 8—President Truman has picked one of this war's top heroes—Gen. Omar N. Bradley—to take over the affairs of several million veterans who look to him as one of their fighting comrades of World War two.

Bradley replaced Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines who resigned obviously at the request of the President.

"I am accepting your resignation only because of a feeling which I have long held that the veterans of this war should have as the administrator of their affairs another veteran of this war," the President told Hines in accepting his resignation.

Bradley, 52-year-old native of Clark, Mo., will take over his new duties as administrator of veterans affairs after a back-home visit to Moberly, Mo., and a brief return to Europe to wind up his affairs as commander of the 12th army group.

After the announcement he and Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff called on the President. Bradley shrugged his shoulders when asked about his familiarity with the job, but said he would start concentrating on it as soon as he returned from his trip to Europe. He is scheduled to take office in 30 to 60 days.

Bradley was graduated from the U. S. Military academy at West Point in 1915. He blazed across the American war picture in this war from the time he first commanded the second corps in the Tunisian

BONOMI CHANGES MIND; PLANS TO RESIGN LATER

ROME, June 8—Premier Ivanoe Bonomi today postponed his expected resignation "for a few more days," although he told his cabinet a new government should be formed quickly.

(The Exchange Telegraph agency reported that Bonomi resigned today but withdrew the resignation at the request of the cabinet and agreed to stay on for two or three days.

Before he entered the cabinet session this morning, Bonomi said he definitely would resign, but he would not say when.

At the meeting, the other members of the cabinet asked him to hold off a few days. He consented, although he warned that hungry and war-ruined Italy needs something more than the talk which has accompanied the last six weeks of political campaigning brought on by the cabinet crisis.

Meanwhile, leftist circles fretted about the delay in establishing a new government. The liberation committee in the north of Italy threatened to establish its own provisional government.

HARRY HOPKINS HURRIES HOME

Presidential Envoy Returns From Successful Mission To Soviet Capital

WASHINGTON, June 8—Presidential Envoy Harry L. Hopkins was hurrying home today from what was reported to be a successful mission to Moscow.

In his pocket were expected to be Russian Premier Josef Stalin's plans for his part in the coming big three meeting, and also possibly the outline of methods for settlement of such questions as the Polish dispute and the control of Germany and Austria.

The former "Mission to Moscow" man, former ambassador to Russia Joseph E. Davies, is already back from his latest journey to London. He has presumably already given President Truman Prime Minister Winston Churchill's ideas on outstanding big three issues and his approval of parley plans.

Speculation turned to Berlin today as the possible meeting place for the three most powerful world leaders, as Mr. Truman told a press conference the meeting would be held within 40 days.

There was nothing positive on which to base this speculation except that there have been official indications it would not be held either in Britain or the United States. Berlin would be a convenient as well as psychologically important alternative.

The President made plain at his news conference that he was thinking purely in terms of a Truman-Churchill-Stalin meeting.

He flatly rejected a formal French proposal for a big five discussion of the Levantine crisis and other Near East problems in an answer so blunt that White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross found it necessary to issue an explanatory statement after the conference.

In discussing the big five proposal, Ross said, the President meant he considered such a meeting inadvisable now because of the imminence of the big three parley.

"This, of course, does not mean that the United States would have any intention of discussing a solution of the Syrian problem at a meeting from which France, Syria and Lebanon were absent," Ross added.

LONDON FARM ESCAPEE HELD AT CHILLICOTHE

CHILLICOTHE, June 8—An escaped London prison farm prisoner and two people who have admitted they aided him were being held in Ross county jail today.

The escaped prisoner, Marion A. Yankee, 32 surrendered Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Roy Paugh, 32, of near Bainbridge. Sheriff's officers and highway petrolmen took Yankee, Mrs. Paugh and Albert Frey, 76, former Bainbridge mayor and Ross county coroner, into custody.

Frey and Mrs. Paugh pleaded guilty in a justice of the peace court to charges of aiding an escaped felon. They were bound over to the county grand jury with bond fixed at $1,000 each. They were unable to furnish bond and remained in jail.

Yankee had been in hiding in a woods near the Paugh home. Sheriff S. B. Mark, of Ross county, said that Mrs. Paugh was a half sister to Yankee. She prepared food for Yankee which Frey, a part time resident at her home, took out to the woods for Yankee, the sheriff said.

Thursday night Yankee decided to surrender to the authorities and left a note at the Paugh residence that he was ready to give up. He was taken to the Ross county jail where he is being questioned prior to being returned to London Prison Farm.

91 DIVISIONS BATTLED NAZIS, 60 WERE YANKEE

WASHINGTON, June 8—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had 91 allied divisions under his command to defeat Germany and 60 of them were American, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson announced today.

Of the American divisions, three were airborne, 15 armored and 42 infantry. There were 14 British divisions, five Canadian, 11 French and one Polish.

These were in addition to the armies in Italy, which included seven American divisions.

SLIGHTLY MORE MEAT PROMISED LAST QUARTER

WASHINGTON, June 8—Agriculture department slide rule experts today promised civilians three pounds more meat per person during the last three months of this year. That's 390,000,000 pounds altogether.

The average civilian may expect about 120 pounds as his meat quota for the entire year 1945. The agriculture department made this forecast on the basis of prospective production and allocations.

Here is how the average citizen probably would see his share divided (if he got his fair share): January, February, March 32.5 pounds; April, May, June—28 pounds; July, August, September—28.7 pounds; October, November, December—31.7 pounds.

The current consumption rate not only is the lowest for the year but is the lowest on record. Last year Americans ate meat at the average rate of 150 pounds, the highest in history.

A 2,000,000,000 pound reduction in meat output accounts for part of the drop. Higher non-civilian requirements accounts for the rest.

Civilians are scehduled to get only 16,000,000,000 pounds in 1945 compared with 19,000,000,000 pounds in 1944. Military, lend-lease and relief requirements are placed at 6,500,000,000 pounds against 5,600,000,000 last year.

Another set of the department's charts and graphs showed that the meat shortage indirectly meant an egg scarcity during the rest of the year.

Because of the short supply of red meats civilians have been consuming eggs at the unprecedented rate of 35 a month so far this year. Short supplies are due to force that rate down to 27 a month for the rest of the year. Americans ate about 29 eggs a month in 1944.

BIG TEN MEDAL IS AWARDED TO JACK DUGGER

COLUMBUS, June 8—Jack Dugger, three-letter Ohio State athlete from Canton, O., today was awarded the university's annual Western conference medal for combined proficiency in athletics and studies.

The 22-year-old athlete received the award at commencement exercises where he was graduated from the college of education after making a three-point average.

Dugger won nine letters while at Ohio State, three each in football, basketball and track. He was named on the All-American and United first football team for outstanding performance while playing end for the Buckeyes' Big Ten championship winning squad last fall.

Dugger also was named on one All-American basketball team this spring. Dugger played forward and center this season.

In the Big Ten championship track events recently Dugger placed first in the discus and third in the shot put, while in the Central Collegiate meet he was second in the discus and third in the shotput.

Dugger will coach athletics at Lancaster, O., high school this fall.

R. F. MacDOWELL STILL ON STAND IN WATER TRIAL

For the third day Rollin F. MacDowell, Cleveland engineer, was being cross examined in the Pickaway county common pleas court trial of the City of Circleville's appropriation suit against the Ohio Water Service company.

Mr. MacDowell is testifying as to the replacement costs of the water plant equipment and services. He is an authority on water plant equipment. He was put on the stand as a witness for the water company.

The trial, which is expected to last about three weeks, is the first appropriation suit brought by a municipality against a water utility in the state of Ohio. It is being watched carefully by the other six cities in Ohio who do not own and operate their own water supply systems.

GEN. BRADLEY GETS VET POST

One Of War's Top Heroes To Succeed Hines In 30 To 60 Days

WASHINGTON, June 8—President Truman has picked one of this war's top heroes—Gen. Omar N. Bradley—to take over the affairs of several million veterans who look to him as one of their fighting comrades of World War two.

Bradley replaced Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines who resigned obviously at the request of the President.

"I am accepting your resignation only because of a feeling which I have long held that the veterans of this war should have as the administrator of their affairs another veteran of this war," the President told Hines in accepting his resignation.

Bradley, 52-year-old native of Clark, Mo., will take over his new duties as administrator of veterans affairs after a back-home visit to Moberly, Mo., and a brief return to Europe to wind up his affairs as commander of the 12th army group.

After the announcement he and Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff called on the President. Bradley shrugged his shoulders when asked about his familiarity with the job, but said he would start concentrating on it as soon as he returned from his trip to Europe. He is scheduled to take office in 30 to 60 days.

Bradley was graduated from the U. S. Military academy at West Point in 1915. He blazed across the American war picture in this war from the time he first commanded the second corps in the Tunisian

BONOMI CHANGES MIND; PLANS TO RESIGN LATER

ROME, June 8—Premier Ivanoe Bonomi today postponed his expected resignation "for a few more days," although he told his cabinet a new government should be formed quickly.

(The Exchange Telegraph agency reported that Bonomi resigned today but withdrew the resignation at the request of the cabinet and agreed to stay on for two or three days.

Before he entered the cabinet session this morning, Bonomi said he definitely would resign, but he would not say when.

At the meeting, the other members of the cabinet asked him to hold off a few days. He consented, although he warned that hungry and war-ruined Italy needs something more than the talk which has accompanied the last six weeks of political campaigning brought on by the cabinet crisis.

Meanwhile, leftist circles fretted about the delay in establishing a new government. The liberation committee in the north of Italy threatened to establish its own provisional government.

British Blocked Discussion Of Liberation At Moscow, Writer Charges

REDS BACK U. S. PLAN

Article States Levantine Events Definitely 'Smell Of Oil'

MOSCOW, June 8—Pravda, the organ of the Communist party, asserted today that the British in 1943 blocked discussion at the Moscow conference of an American plan for early liberation of "the entire colonial world" along the lines of the Atlantic Charter.

The assertion was made by A. Leontiev, in the first of a series of articles on colonial problems.

Leontiev said the American plan was supported by the Soviet Union but was not discussed at Moscow because of British objections.

He cited the situation in Syria and Lebanon as the latest example of how rivalries over colonial resources disturb world peace.

e events in Syria and Leb- he said, "according to the foreign press, definitely 'smells of oil'."

"A prominent role in the solution of these international affairs," said the article, "is being played not only by the colonial powers but by the Soviet Union which has always defended the right of peoples for self determination and complete national independence and by the United States which has no considerable colonial possessions and therefore is not interested in preserving the existing colonial system."

However, he said that in colonial discussions at San Francisco the United States had accepted the essentials of the British position.

"The American proposals in 1943," he said, "had the following characteristics: first, they embraced the colonial problem as a whole and unequivocally declared for the granting of independence to all colonial peoples as the purpose of all the Allied nations; second, they proposed a system of international trusteeships be established and applied to a definite group of dependent countries with the purpose of granting them at the earliest time the status of independence."

The article noted that one of the international problems involved was that of the colonies of the nations which had been defeated and that this must be solved in the general task of building a stable peace.

"It is well known," he noted, "how many reefs threatening a stable peace are to be found in the present day colonial system with

LONDON FARM ESCAPEE HELD AT CHILLICOTHE

CHILLICOTHE, June 8—An escaped London prison farm prisoner and two people who have admitted they aided him were being held in Ross county jail today.

The escaped prisoner, Marion A. Yankee, 32 surrendered Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Roy Paugh, 32, of near Bainbridge. Sheriff's officers and highway petrolmen took Yankee, Mrs. Paugh and Albert Frey, 76, former Bainbridge mayor and Ross county coroner, into custody.

Frey and Mrs. Paugh pleaded guilty in a justice of the peace court to charges of aiding an escaped felon. They were bound over to the county grand jury with bond fixed at $1,000 each. They were unable to furnish bond and remained in jail.

Yankee had been in hiding in a woods near the Paugh home. Sheriff S. B. Mark, of Ross county, said that Mrs. Paugh was a half sister to Yankee. She prepared food for Yankee which Frey, a part time resident at her home, took out to the woods for Yankee, the sheriff said.

Thursday night Yankee decided to surrender to the authorities and left a note at the Paugh residence that he was ready to give up. He was taken to the Ross county jail where he is being questioned prior to being returned to London Prison Farm.

BACKGROUND OF GERMAN PROBLEM

WHILE COMPLETE DETAILS concerning the exact manner in which the Allied Control Council will govern Germany remained unsettled, the above map indicates some of the questions involved and shows how Nazi-land was stripped of her conquered territory. Discussions have risen over French control of Cologne and Frankfort, while Russia awaits withdrawal of U. S. and British troops from areas located to the east of Berlin which were assigned to the Soviet government. (International)

HARRY HOPKINS HURRIES HOME

Presidential Envoy Returns From Successful Mission To Soviet Capital

WASHINGTON, June 8—Presidential Envoy Harry L. Hopkins was hurrying home today from what was reported to be a successful mission to Moscow.

In his pocket were expected to be Russian Premier Josef Stalin's plans for his part in the coming big three meeting, and also possibly the outline of methods for settlement of such questions as the Polish dispute and the control of Germany and Austria.

The former "Mission to Moscow" man, former ambassador to Russia Joseph E. Davies, is already back from his latest journey to London. He has presumably already given President Truman Prime Minister Winston Churchill's ideas on outstanding big three issues and his approval of parley plans.

Speculation turned to Berlin today as the possible meeting place for the three most powerful world leaders, as Mr. Truman told a press conference the meeting would be held within 40 days.

There was nothing positive on which to base this speculation except that there have been official indications it would not be held either in Britain or the United States. Berlin would be a convenient as well as psychologically important alternative.

The President made plain at his news conference that he was thinking purely in terms of a Truman-Churchill-Stalin meeting.

He flatly rejected a formal French proposal for a big five discussion of the Levantine crisis and other Near East problems in an answer so blunt that White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross found it necessary to issue an explanatory statement after the conference.

In discussing the big five proposal, Ross said, the President meant he considered such a meeting inadvisable now because of the imminence of the big three parley.

"This, of course, does not mean that the United States would have any intention of discussing a solution of the Syrian problem at a meeting from which France, Syria and Lebanon were absent," Ross added.

91 DIVISIONS BATTLED NAZIS, 60 WERE YANKEE

WASHINGTON, June 8—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had 91 allied divisions under his command to defeat Germany and 60 of them were American, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson announced today.

Of the American divisions, three were airborne, 15 armored and 42 infantry. There were 14 British divisions, five Canadian, 11 French and one Polish.

These were in addition to the armies in Italy, which included seven American divisions.

SLIGHTLY MORE MEAT PROMISED LAST QUARTER

WASHINGTON, June 8—Agriculture department slide rule experts today promised civilians three pounds more meat per person during the last three months of this year. That's 390,000,000 pounds altogether.

The average civilian may expect about 120 pounds as his meat quota for the entire year 1945. The agriculture department made this forecast on the basis of prospective production and allocations.

Here is how the average citizen probably would see his share divided (if he got his fair share): January, February, March 32.5 pounds; April, May, June—28 pounds; July, August, September—28.7 pounds; October, November, December—31.7 pounds.

The current consumption rate not only is the lowest for the year but is the lowest on record. Last year Americans ate meat at the average rate of 150 pounds, the highest in history.

A 2,000,000,000 pound reduction in meat output accounts for part of the drop. Higher non-civilian requirements accounts for the rest.

Civilians are scehduled to get only 16,000,000,000 pounds in 1945 compared with 19,000,000,000 pounds in 1944. Military, lend-lease and relief requirements are placed at 6,500,000,000 pounds against 5,600,000,000 last year.

Another set of the department's charts and graphs showed that the meat shortage indirectly meant an egg scarcity during the rest of the year.

Because of the short supply of red meats civilians have been consuming eggs at the unprecedented rate of 35 a month so far this year. Short supplies are due to force that rate down to 27 a month for the rest of the year. Americans ate about 29 eggs a month in 1944.

BIG TEN MEDAL IS AWARDED TO JACK DUGGER

COLUMBUS, June 8—Jack Dugger, three-letter Ohio State athlete from Canton, O., today was awarded the university's annual Western conference medal for combined proficiency in athletics and studies.

The 22-year-old athlete received the award at commencement exercises where he was graduated from the college of education after making a three-point average.

Dugger won nine letters while at Ohio State, three each in football, basketball and track. He was named on the All-American and United first football team for outstanding performance while playing end for the Buckeyes' Big Ten championship winning squad last fall.

Dugger also was named on one All-American basketball team this spring. Dugger played forward and center this season.

In the Big Ten championship track events recently Dugger placed first in the discus and third in the shot put, while in the Central Collegiate meet he was second in the discus and third in the shotput.

Dugger will coach athletics at Lancaster, O., high school this fall.

LUZON LINES BROKEN

37th Division Drives Along Cagayan Valley With Little Resistance

By United Press

The war reached "a very difficult stage" for the Japanese today by Tokyo's admission as their suicide plane bases in the homeland and their suicide soldiers in Okinawa took further beatings.

The Japanese reported that 200 or more carrier-based American planes raided suicide plane bases on the southern home island of Kyushu shortly after noon today.

On Okinawa, the last Japanese pocket had been sliced in two, and Marine and Army troops moved in under clearing skies for the final mopping-up.

The ring drew tighter around Japan as Chinese troops, fighting on the east coast of China opposite Okinawa, fought into the suburbs of Futing to cap an 120-mile drive in three weeks.

Luzon Lines Broken

Japanese lines in northern Luzon, in the Philippines, were broken entirely, for the time being at least. The 37th army division drove along the Cagayan valley with no resistance to speak of in its way. A 13-mile spurt in two days took the 37th within five miles of Bayombong.

Four American divisions closed in for the kill on Okinawa—the 1st and 6th marine divisions and the 7th and 96th army divisions.

Marines Split Pocket

The first Marine Division did the job of cutting the Japanese pocket in two by driving through to the southwest coast at a point 900 yards northwest of the town of Itoman.

On the First's right, the Sixth division was only 3,500 yards away after capturing the town of Gushi.

To their left, the 7th and 96th divisions assaulted the main enemy forces left on the rock table known as the Yaeju-Dake escarpment. The Japanese were fighting here with their backs to the sea.

The 96th division gained 1,000 yards through the hills northeast of Yuza, and there was a possibility they could swing around to flank the enemy positions on the escarpment. The weather was clearing, and a slight hardening of the ground made it possible for the 96th to use tanks.

Japs Dug In

The Seventh division, attacking toward the escarpment on a line running all the way to the sea, reported intense machine gun fire from the Japanese, who were well dug in. Marine dive bombers pounded the hills to drive the Japanese from their caves, and ships offshore added to the tremendous weight of shells thrown at the enemy positions.

Just off Okinawa, O island, little more than a dot even on big maps, was taken with little resistance.

Suicide Attacks Resume

Tokyo claimed that the better weather, which gave the Americans effective air support again, also enabled the Japanese to re-

R. F. MacDOWELL STILL ON STAND IN WATER TRIAL

For the third day Rollin F. MacDowell, Cleveland engineer, was being cross examined in the Pickaway county common pleas court trial of the City of Circleville's appropriation suit against the Ohio Water Service company.

Mr. MacDowell is testifying as to the replacement costs of the water plant equipment and services. He is an authority on water plant equipment. He was put on the stand as a witness for the water company.

The trial, which is expected to last about three weeks, is the first appropriation suit brought by a municipality against a water utility in the state of Ohio. It is being watched carefully by the other six cities in Ohio who do not own and operate their own water supply systems.

SHERIFF RIDES BALLOON BOMB

the west's open secret to the extent of reporting that Japan had been bombarding this hemisphere sporadically with bombs carried by long-range free balloons made of paper.

At least some of the balloons have an estimated gas capacity of 18,000 cubic feet and a lifting power of about 800 pounds.

The bombs are attached to hooks and are released by barostats set to operate together or separately at different altitudes in the course of the balloon's up-and-down flight.

The story of the western sheriff and his ride can now be told although complete details as to time and place must be withheld. It started when a rancher reported what he thought was a big parachute coming down in the foothills.

The sheriff knew from the description what it was. He called an FBI man and sallied forth to his great adventure. When they came to the place, the balloon had settled to earth. But while they looked a gust of wind sent it into the air again.

The sheriff chased it. The first time he got close enough to grab at its mechanism he deliberately let opportunity slip by; life was sweet and he had no desire to take leave of it.

But the call of duty won out. After a 200-yard sprint the sheriff got hold of one of the balloon's many shrouds. From then on he couldn't have let go if he'd wanted to—which he did.

For 55 minutes the balloon pulled him over hill and dale. Once it carried him bodily across a 35-foot ravine. He tried to climb on top of the balloon and hold it down, but it threw him off. Finally, he was able to throw a hitch around a tree and bring the bag to a halt. With the FBI man's help, he tied it fast.

"I was plumb tuckered out," the sheriff reported later. "I felt like I was in the middle of a nightmare."

Another sheriff got the biggest game of his life when he potted one of the balloons with his rifle.

Rural residents in one locality call the visitors from the Orient Japanese lanterns and no longer pay much attention to them.

The balloons for the most part have landed in remote areas where their bombs exploded harmlessly and their incendiaries burned themselves out in their own craters. One came down in a tree where it was found dangling 70 feet from the ground. Another hit a power line but did only nominal damage.

Two children found a balloon-missile and unscrewed its nose. They were lucky. It didn't go off.

The balloons can fly at great altitude. It takes about four days for them to ride air currents across the Pacific from their launching sites in Japan.

How far they penetrate inland apparently depends in part on the vagaries of the winds and in part on the barometric pressure devices for releasing their cargo and sand bags. They are equipped with mechanisms—which don't always work—designed to destroy the balloons by fire after they drop their bombs.

Authorities in states within the balloons' range have been instructed to watch for them. In wooded areas forest rangers have been alerted to the fire menace involved.

Thus far this hasn't proved to be very serious. As a threat to forests, according to rangers, the Japanese balloons still rank far below campers and the careless public.

"BOOM TOWN" IN CUBA is in Nicaro where the Nicaro Nickel company produces a stream of the valuable metal for the United States at a rate of more than 27,000,000 pounds a year. Unlike most "boom towns," Nicaro is a far cry from the mud-bogged settlements near our western oil fields. Nicaro, the industrial town which was hacked out of a jungle, is clean and neat. Top photo above shows attractive tile-roofed houses and clean streets built by the Nicaro Nickel company for employes at its plant. campaign.

Then he headed the 12th army group which battered its way across the Rhine river into Germany and thus became one of the top idols of the nation's fighting men.

As far as the President is concerned, the Bradley replacement of Hines was strictly a matter of this war versus the last one. As a veteran of the last war the President told a news conference he wouldn't have liked it if a veteran of the Spanish-American war had been put in charge of his own veterans' problems.

Hines has been administrator of veterans affairs since 1930.

The President mitigated his replacement of Hines by asking him to accept within the near future "another post of public importance," saying he had been assured by Hines that he would accept.

sume their suicide plane attacks on the fleet in the island's waters.

The carrier planes which attacked the suicide bases on Kyushu today probably came from one of the task forces in Admiral William (Bull) Halsey's Third fleet. One of the bases hit was at Kanoya, on the eastern shore of Kagoshima bay. Tokyo said the planes swept over in waves of 30 to 40, but did no damage. So far there was no official American confirmation of the attacks.

The Japanese couldn't seem to make up their minds just what line to take today on Okinawa. One broadcast said:

"No one can deny that the fighting on Okinawa will have a great effect on the entire war."

But another claimed that Okinawa "never was intended to decide the fate of our nation."

The Japanese also reported that B-29 superfortresses had been reconnoitering even the medium and small-sized cities of Japan, apparently in preparation for new blows on Nippon.

Lace is a valued possession nowadays. With some lovely old lace you can perk up an old dress to look like a brand new one. To launder safely, make up a hot suds with mild soap or soap powder, put it in a fruit jar, add lace and cover with lid. Let soak for five minutes and then shake gently several times. Rinse thoroughly in three cold rinse waters, then carefully shake out the lace and let dry on turkish towel. Press on wrong side with warm iron.

CUBAN 'BOOM TOWN' ANSWERS U. S. CALL FOR NICKEL

"BOOM TOWN" IN CUBA is in Nicaro where the Nicaro Nickel company produces a stream of the valuable metal for the United States at a rate of more than 27,000,000 pounds a year. Unlike most "boom towns," Nicaro is a far cry from the mud-bogged settlements near our western oil fields. Nicaro, the industrial town which was hacked out of a jungle, is clean and neat. Top photo above shows attractive tile-roofed houses and clean streets built by the Nicaro Nickel company for employes at its plant. Lower photo (at right) shows the 16-hearth, oil-fired Herreshoff furnaces, which are the largest of their kind in the world. (International)

Then he headed the 12th army group which battered its way across the Rhine river into Germany and thus became one of the top idols of the nation's fighting men.

As far as the President is concerned, the Bradley replacement of Hines was strictly a matter of this war versus the last one. As a veteran of the last war the President told a news conference he wouldn't have liked it if a veteran of the Spanish-American war had been put in charge of his own veterans' problems.

Hines has been administrator of veterans affairs since 1930.

The President mitigated his replacement of Hines by asking him to accept within the near future "another post of public importance," saying he had been assured by Hines that he would accept.

CARRIER PLANES BLAST KYUSHU SUICIDE BASES

sume their suicide plane attacks on the fleet in the island's waters.

The carrier planes which attacked the suicide bases on Kyushu today probably came from one of the task forces in Admiral William (Bull) Halsey's Third fleet. One of the bases hit was at Kanoya, on the eastern shore of Kagoshima bay. Tokyo said the planes swept over in waves of 30 to 40, but did no damage. So far there was no official American confirmation of the attacks.

The Japanese couldn't seem to make up their minds just what line to take today on Okinawa. One broadcast said:

"No one can deny that the fighting on Okinawa will have a great effect on the entire war."

But another claimed that Okinawa "never was intended to decide the fate of our nation."

The Japanese also reported that B-29 superfortresses had been reconnoitering even the medium and small-sized cities of Japan, apparently in preparation for new blows on Nippon.

CHURCH LEADER PROTESTS WAR TRAINING PLAN

WASHINGTON, June 8—Protestant churches have joined the national Catholic welfare conference and other education and religious organizations in opposing peace time compulsory military training.

Testifying before the house postwar military policy committee, Dr. Herbert J. Burgstahler, representing the Protestant group, said that "the peace should establish procedures for controlling military establishments everywhere."

Burgstahler said that efforts should be concentrated on reducing armaments in the postwar period rather than building a new military force.

Adoption of a peace time training program now, he said, would help defeat the aims of the Atlantic Charter and the San Francisco international security conference.

SUGAR CHEATERS

IT looks as if sugar is in danger of degenerating into a racket, with too much of it going into basement stills, as it did in prohibition days, instead of helping along the home canning industry. It is a shameful situation, as described by Chester Bowles, OPA Administrator.

Last summer, he says, a lot of citizens deliberately cheated, by getting sugar on the pretense of using it for canning and then using it for liquor and other purposes. Thus they greatly lessened the available sugar supply, which was already small. This year similar tricks are practised. There is sugar enough for the home canning if enough citizens will be decent about it. If they will not do so voluntarily, there should be a suitable action.

This is primarily a local problem, which could be handled more easily if citizens in general would get hard-boiled about it and make the cheaters understand how thoroughly they are in disgrace and in the contempt of all the decent members of the community.

BUSY DE GAULLE

GEN. Charles de Gaulle is a patriot who seems in danger of developing into a spoiled child. In his recent mood he may muss up Syria and Lebanon and the whole Near East, in which France has considerable interests.

The trouble is that other nations, too, have interests there which they feel obliged to defend. Britain especially is edgy about the situation, for the central point of trouble is just about the center of her world empire. And in the natural course of events even Uucle Sam may be pushing into the fracas, for our interests are beginning to cover the world.

It is well to walk warily in these times. There is probably no better advice than the famous admonition of Theodore Roosevelt, to "speak softly and carry a big stick." It always was good advice, even if "Teddy" himself only observed half of the rule.

SLOW BUT SURE

MANY Americans are disappointed by what, in spite of victories, often seems like slow progress on the Pacific front. Too much was expected too soon. It is slowly dawning on the public that the Japanese are in no sense a pushover, but as tough an enemy as this nation ever faced. Thus the hoped-for early victory is now postponed. By next year, the President has announced, our fighting forces will be raised to 7,000,000 men, probably constituting the strongest force ever launched against a foreign enemy.

This great power, it should be realized, is not intended for scattered fighting but for an overwhelming assault against the Japanese home islands, eliminating Japan hereafter as a major power. Development and operation of such an undertaking is tremendous to anticipate, will be still greater in execution.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

NEW YORK, June 8—These are the nights when you turn on the radio and listen to a lot of strangers while the regulars who monopolize the airwaves 39 weeks a year try to catch up on their peace of mind.

Edgar Bergen and his wooden-headed friend finished up a week and a half ago and this famous Sunday night spot filled now by a company composed of Frances Langford, Tony Romano and the Spike Jones orchestra. The date of Bergen's return is not definite, but it probably will be in October.

Bob Hope and Hildegarde bowed out of the picture temporarily Tuesday night, to be replaced, respectively, by a drama series labeled "The Man Called X," featuring Herbert Marshall, and Sigmund Romberg and a concert orchestra. Hope will spend the Summer abroad entertaining soldiers. Both programs resume Sept. 11.

Jack Benny left the air May 27 and is headed overseas for troop entertainment purposes. He'll go back to work Sept. 23 or 30.

The Eddie Bracken program has left for good and the time is now taken up by Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra. Fred Allen takes this spot next fall.

Ed Gardner and "Duffy's Tavern" takes leave with the program this Friday night to return Sept. 14 or 21. Ed also makes the overseas trek while "Correction Please," with Jay C. Flippen, fills in.

Dinah Shore quit a week ago and her substitute is Roland Young playing in a series called "Adventures with Topper." She'll be back Aug. 30. "Information, Please" quits June 25, to be replaced by Rise Stevens and a concert orchestra until Sept. 10; Amos 'n' Andy sign off June 29 until Aug. 5, with Mentalist Joseph Dunninger subbing, and Harold Lloyd and "The Comedy Theater" make way after June 10 for "Meet Me at Parky's," which brings back to the air after a long absence Eddie Cantor's old sidekick, Parkyakarkus. The "Information" boys go overseas.

Cantor takes his leave June 20 but the rest of his cast will continue to function while the master produces and acts in a film for RKO. He'll be off 13 weeks.

Fibber McGee and Molly will be off from June 26 to Nov. 1, and the replacement probably will be Victor Borge. The Frank Morgan show quit Thursday and next fall Burns and Allen will be in this spot. Roy Shields and a musical crew will spend the Summer there.

Frank Sinatra already is off the air, bound overseas, and Ray Noble and his orchestra are the replacement. Rumors to the contrary, Frank will be back, same time, same sponsor, next Fall. As for his picture plans, there is strong indication he will do a remake of "The Jazz Singer" for Warner brothers.

Burns and Allen leave July 2 and this air time will go to Joan Davis come Sept. 3. Ozzie and Harriet Nelson will be off for 13 weeks beginning June 13, to be replaced by Conrad Nagle and "The Silver Theatre," while the "Radio Theater" is off July 2-Aug. 20. "Inner Sanctum' will be missing July 3-Aug 31.

Jack Carson and his show depart June 20; Durante and Moore will be replaced by Ray Bolger July 6-Aug. 30; Harry James and his band will fill in for Danny Kaye June 8-Sept. 28, and Lionel Barrymore and "Mayor of the Town" loaf July 21-Aug. 25. Fanny Brice rests June 17-Sept. 9 and "Report to the Nation" is the substitute.

DIET AND HEALTH

Nutrition Is Poor During An Illness

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE USE of a well-balanced diet not only is important during the treatment of illness, but also during the recovery or convalescent period. As soon as a person is injured or suffers from disease, poor nutrition almost always starts at once.

According to Doctors John P. Peters of Yale University and Robert Elman of Washington University, this malnutrition comes as a result of two things; first, the direct effect of the disease or injury in damaging tissues, and second, a lessened food intake, because during these times persons just do not have a good appetite or are unable to eat.

Wasting of Tissues

Unless the body is properly supplied with all of the necessary food parts, there is wasting of the tissues. Hence, food and fluid must be given in proper quantities and proportions, starting with the very onset of the illness. If this is done there will be no need for treating severe and prolonged malnutrition during the convalescent time.

So often it is forgotten that no matter how much food is offered to a patient, it will have no value unless it is eaten, and this failure to eat may arise from physical weakness or exhaustion, or because even the motions of eating are painful.

It is often helpful to take advantage of the sense of thirst, because a thirsty person will take fluids, and both calories and proteins may be given in the form of fluids.

Proteins are the parts of food necessary for rebuilding worn-out and damaged tissues. Calories refer to the amount of heat units furnished by the food in the diet. Of course, when the patient is able to take solids the use of fluid and semi-fluid foods can be more or less discontinued.

It is important to keep up the salt content of the diet of a convalescent patient except when the patient has heart failure or chronic kidney inflammation with edema, that is, collection of fluid in the tissues. Doctors Peters and Elman think that he should have at least five grams of salt a day which is one-sixth of an ounce or about one standard teaspoonful. If the body is depleted of salt, the patient will neither eat nor drink well. The extra salt may be given in broths, milk, tomato and fruit juices.

Eggs Beneficial

Although it may not be possible to give all the protein needed during convalescence a great deal of it can be supplied in eggs, preferably cooked, milk and ground meat. Starchy foods, sugars and fats have a protein sparing action and, of course, enough of these foods should be given so that most of the protein taken will be utilized for tissue repair and not for furnishing energy to the body.

Because of the limited number of foods which can be taken by a convalescent patient, a vitamin deficiency may develop. Hence, the vitamin should be supplied by such preparations which the doctor will prescribe. Attention to these details of the convalescent diet may often shorten the period of illness and recovery.

SYNOPSIS

TERRY ARNOLD, a young Vermont newspaperwoman, has written a fairly successful novel. To gather material for a second book she has gone to the Argentine, her subject matter to be the wealthy playboy set of that Latin-American country.
Other characters are:
BROOKS KIMBERLY, owner of Ultimo Ventura, a race horse;
CORINNE ARTIGAS, Kimberly's fiancee, and
RAFF CORDOBA, architect and friend of Kimberly.

YESTERDAY: Terry decides that the South American idea of marriage is much more to her liking than the "separate career" type of marriage which she and Fitz Turner had planned. She also gets a good look at a $20,000 China bull.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

TERRY STEPPED into the stable and stared about it with startled eyes. Unconsciously she had been thinking of her uncle's stable in Vermont—old, smelling of musty hay, cattle and old leather, eerie with the slanting rays of a lantern.

This was something different. A compartment clean enough to live in, with spotless paint on walls and ceiling, and shining scrubbed floor. Electric lights had been shaded to soften their rays. Sandy, the mayordomo, a stranger who must be MacDougal, the veterinarian, and three grooms, were working over the huge animal. Terry slipped into the circle. They nodded to her absently and went on with their work of keeping the heaving animal covered with electric pads and blankets.

China was a magnificent beast. Terry could see the noble lines of the head, even though his mouth was open in a labored effort to breathe and his eyes were feverish and bloodshot.

"What's wrong with it?" Terry asked.

"Pneumonia," Sandy told her dryly.

"Don't you think we could give him another shot of the sulfa?" MacDouglas looked up at them.

The mayordomo looked at China, considering, then turned to Terry. "Dinner's over up at the house, is it?"

"Yes," Terry said.

"Brooks told me to call the house if there was anything—"

Terry smothered an impulsive grin. She had been about to offer to go for Brooks. Of course, this stable would have a telephone system connected with the house. Undoubtedly China himself was in the habit of calling the kitchen for his tea!

MacDougal said quietly, "You should call him, I believe."

Sandy was starting toward the door leading to the center corridor of the stables when a striding step sounded outside.

"Wait a bit!" MacDougal called.

Sandy turned, then relaxed, as Brooks appeared in the doorway. He came over and dropped to one knee beside the bull, examined its eyes, listened to its breathing.

"He's worse," he said shortly.

"Yes," Sandy came back. "Temperature's up a degree. And he's losing strength fast."

"What about the sulfa?"

The three of them discussed it, decided on another injection. Terry watched the process, fascinated. Never was there any more efficiency and tension in a human sick chamber.

China heaved suddenly and turned over, scattering hot pads and blankets. Sandy thrust the injector he was sterilizing into Terry's hands and rushed to help recover the beast.

When the excitement was over it was Brooks who came for the instrument. He noticed Terry for the first time.

"What are you doing down here?" He smiled at her vaguely as he sterilized the needle and went back.

For a while after the injection they watched the bull's tossing head in tense silence. After a while Sandy mumbled, "I'm athinkin' we did that in good time, Brooks."

MacDougal nodded. "It looks to me like he's gettin' near the crisis."

Terry mused, "If they only had oxygen tents for bulls!"

Brooks said shortly, "They're flying one out now from Buenos Aires."

Terry gave him a quick look. He wasn't smiling. None of the others were either. But of course, she chided herself, they would have oxygen tanks for bulls! She was just an old-fashioned city girl.

Time went on. Terry forgot she had dropped in for a peek at an expensive animal. She was as engrossed as the others now in the fatal drama of China's hoarse breathing. Unconsciously she was urging the animal on in its heartbreaking efforts for each breath. She was taking her turn with the others in pulling back the blankets, adjusting the hot pads when the animal tossed.

The crisis was almost on them now. The tense men agreed on it with silent nods. Grooms rushed about on emergency errands, bringing oil for the beast's tongue, bringing ice packs, more hot pads, more blankets. Brooks, Sandy and MacDougal were working over the animal with every skill they knew.

It was at this crucial minute that the outside door opened. Faint music from the mansion drifted in like the memory of another world. Terry glanced up, and caught her breath.

Corinne was in the doorway, fragile and exquisite in her black sequined gown, her voice frosty. "So you came down to the stables!"

Brooks walked over to shut the door behind her. "China's bad. Can't have any cold air right now." He turned again and went back to take his position beside the tossing head of the beast.

Corinne caught her breath. Terry saw the flash of fire in the velvet black depths of her eyes. She crossed to Brooks and murmured, "I work for weeks to get those three men down here to talk to you. And you leave in the middle of their questions. You walk out without a word, to stay with a bull! Aren't you interested in your political career?"

Brooks said tensely, not taking his eyes from the bull. "I can't neglect my livestock."

Corinne lost all patience. "Sandy can watch him. And what if China does die! Even that's not as important as your impressing De Valdero!"

"De Valdero should be impressed by how a man does his own work. If he isn't—then it isn't important to impress him."

Corrine forgot everything and everyone then in her fury. Her voice rose in a scream of anger.

"Brooks Kimberly, are you coming?"

Brooks turned and looked at her, his face expressionless. Terry waited, fascinated, for his decision. But she was not to know it. At that instant Sandy's voice cut into the tense silence.

"This is it! It's the turnin' point."

Brooks gaze was back on China. Even Terry was too excited to watch Corinne's reaction. Vaguely she heard the door slam as the girl went out.

"The Authority on Authorities"

COUNTER THEIR BLOWS

THERE IS no profit in whining that the opponents put up the best possible defense against you, whereas they gave some other declarer in the duplicate an easy way to make his contract, plus perhaps an extra trick or so, with bad defense. Maybe you merely should have altered your own plan for play and, by greater skill, could have gained the same result anyway. And isn't it more satisfactory to get your good scores as a just reward for your own good work, instead of as mere gifts?

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦
Pass	2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

That bid was repeated at several tables of a duplicate, and at others South jumped immediately into the 3-No Trumps after hearing the spade bid. But not all of the declarers made the contract.

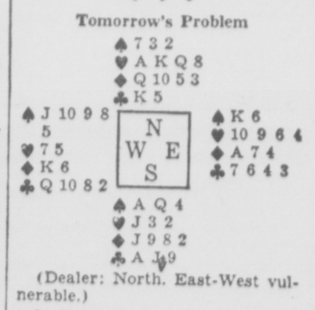

At one table West led his heart J to the Q. South led the diamond J, which East allowed to win. The diamond A and K then won, and the Q took the 10, setting up the 8. The heart 9 to the 10 made the defense's second trick, and the K knocked out the A. The spade 2 was led to the Q, the A winning the third defense trick. No matter what East returned, the spade K was a dummy entry to score the diamond 8, so South scored one trick in spades, two in hearts, four in diamonds and three in clubs for a total of ten.

One South complained that West beat him with the best lead, a spade. Dummy won the third, and he could get only three diamonds because he had no re-entry to dummy, so tried the heart finesse to build a ninth trick. So he lost two hearts, a club, a diamond and a spade, and was down one.

But where another declarer got the spade re-entry killed early, he scored three diamonds and three clubs, then led a fourth club to West, who had to return a heart, giving South two tricks there, plus his last club, for 10 tricks. There were several other variations, some declarers making exactly game and some being set a trick after a spade lead.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

If South makes the mistake of using his spade A over the K on the first trick, what is his best remaining chance to make 3-No Trumps on this deal?

Writer Bets Hoover Was Given Food Job | Former President Has Had Wide Experience

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

● WASHINGTON—Herbert Hoover came back to the White House for more than a social call.

For the first time in more than 12 years, he crossed the threshold that used to be his own front door step when he was president of the United States.

In the years that have intervened since he rode down to the Capitol to see his successor, Franklin Roosevelt, take the oath of office for the world's number one job, Hoover has learned little of the technique of being a smart politician or playing up to the press. You knew that the instant he stepped from his car in front of the executive offices of the White House and waved the photographers away.

Herbert Hoover

He was also far from chummy when he told the news people: "I cannot discuss matters which are the affairs of the president of the United States."

Even if he wasn't chatty he still looked the able, conscientious American citizen he is when he paused a moment outside Mr. Truman's closed door.

It is my bet—my daily double since the ban on racing has been lifted—that not only has Hoover been offered the post of feeding Europe, but that he has accepted the offer.

Mr. Truman would not have asked the former president to come to Washington for a publicly-known conference if he had not had a definite offer to make. Nor would Hoover have come so cheerfully if he had not been prepared to accept the offer.

It is my guess that all the preliminaries for a new Hoover post had been arranged before he saw the president. During the 40-minute conference with the chief executive, the details were settled upon.

It would be a wise decision to use Hoover's gifts and experience in devastated, hungry Europe. His success as food administrator in Europe after the first World war has never been questioned. Many people have believed it a waste of first class, much-needed material to let Hoover's talents go unused so long.

The former president, who is the only living ex-president, appeared very fit. He made few visits to Washington during Roosevelt's administrations. Everybody who saw Hoover yesterday said he looked better than he had for many a day.

● ONE OF THE STUPIDITIES for which some members of Congress will have to answer come next election day is the haggling that goes on when an appropriation for a hospital is sought. Congress appropriates hundreds of millions of dollars for destruction. It pays expense accounts of hundreds of thousands of dollars for trips to Europe, Asia and Africa in order that some of its members may gaze on destruction.

But it goes niggardly over the prospect of a modest appropriation for much needed housing and care of sick people in the District of Columbia.

I listened to such goings on in the hearings before the House District committee on whether the proposed Medical Center should have this number of beds or that number of beds! The objections to the hospital and to increasing the number of hospital beds in the District sounded so silly. Everybody knows there are not enough hospitals in the District now. Everybody knows that Washington and the neighborhoods over the District line are growing so fast you can't keep up with the population on an adding machine.

Fire Hazards Said to Be Terrific

A Medical Center such as Senator Millard Tydings is trying to get would combine three hospitals. It will operate with modern equipment at the cost of one. Should there be a fire in any one of the three hospitals I've mentioned—in fact in almost any hospital in the capital of the nation—there would be a holocaust that would disgrace the country. The fire hazards in the Washington hospitals are so terrific the mere telling of them makes one ill with fear.

Hope will spend the Summer abroad entertaining soldiers. Both programs resume Sept. 11.

Jack Benny left the air May 27 and is headed overseas for troop entertainment purposes. He'll go back to work Sept. 23 or 30.

The Eddie Bracken program has left for good and the time is now taken up by Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra. Fred Allen takes this spot next fall.

Ed Gardner and "Duffy's Tavern" takes leave with the program this Friday night to return Sept. 14 or 21. Ed also makes the overseas trek while "Correction Please," with Jay C. Flippen, fills in.

Dinah Shore quit a week ago and her substitute is Roland Young playing in a series called "Adventures with Topper." She'll be back Aug. 30. "Information, Please" quits June 25, to be replaced by Rise Stevens and a concert orchestra until Sept. 10; Amos 'n' Andy sign off June 29 until Aug. 5, with Mentalist Joseph Dunninger subbing, and Harold Lloyd and "The Comedy Theater" make way after June 10 for "Meet Me at Parky's," which brings back to the air after a long absence Eddie Cantor's old sidekick, Parkyakarkus. The "Information" boys go overseas.

Cantor takes his leave June 20 but the rest of his cast will continue to function while the master produces and acts in a film for RKO. He'll be off 13 weeks.

Fibber McGee and Molly will be off from June 26 to Nov. 1, and the replacement probably will be Victor Borge. The Frank Morgan show quit Thursday and next fall Burns and Allen will be in this spot. Roy Shields and a musical crew will spend the Summer there.

Frank Sinatra already is off the air, bound overseas, and Ray Noble and his orchestra are the replacement. Rumors to the contrary, Frank will be back, same time, same sponsor, next Fall. As for his picture plans, there is strong indication he will do a remake of "The Jazz Singer" for Warner brothers.

Burns and Allen leave July 2 and this air time will go to Joan Davis come Sept. 3. Ozzie and Harriet Nelson will be off for 13 weeks beginning June 13, to be replaced by Conrad Nagle and "The Silver Theatre," while the "Radio Theater" is off July 2-Aug. 20. "Inner Sanctum' will be missing July 3-Aug 31.

Jack Carson and his show depart June 20; Durante and Moore will be replaced by Ray Bolger July 6-Aug. 30; Harry James and his band will fill in for Danny Kaye June 8-Sept. 28, and Lionel Barrymore and "Mayor of the Town" loaf July 21-Aug. 25. Fanny Brice rests June 17-Sept. 9 and "Report to the Nation" is the substitute.

DIET AND HEALTH

Nutrition Is Poor During An Illness

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE USE of a well-balanced diet not only is important during the treatment of illness, but also during the recovery or convalescent period. As soon as a person is injured or suffers from disease, poor nutrition almost always starts at once.

According to Doctors John P. Peters of Yale University and Robert Elman of Washington University, this malnutrition comes as a result of two things; first, the direct effect of the disease or injury in damaging tissues, and second, a lessened food intake, because during these times persons just do not have a good appetite or are unable to eat.

Wasting of Tissues

Unless the body is properly supplied with all of the necessary food parts, there is wasting of the tissues. Hence, food and fluid must be given in proper quantities and proportions, starting with the very onset of the illness. If this is done there will be no need for treating severe and prolonged malnutrition during the convalescent time.

So often it is forgotten that no matter how much food is offered to a patient, it will have no value unless it is eaten, and this failure to eat may arise from physical weakness or exhaustion, or because even the motions of eating are painful.

It is often helpful to take advantage of the sense of thirst, because a thirsty person will take fluids, and both calories and proteins may be given in the form of fluids.

Proteins are the parts of food necessary for rebuilding worn-out and damaged tissues. Calories refer to the amount of heat units furnished by the food in the diet. Of course, when the patient is able to take solids the use of fluid and semi-fluid foods can be more or less discontinued.

It is important to keep up the salt content of the diet of a convalescent patient except when the patient has heart failure or chronic kidney inflammation with edema, that is, collection of fluid in the tissues. Doctors Peters and Elman think that he should have at least five grams of salt a day which is one-sixth of an ounce or about one standard teaspoonful. If the body is depleted of salt, the patient will neither eat nor drink well. The extra salt may be given in broths, milk, tomato and fruit juices.

Eggs Beneficial

Although it may not be possible to give all the protein needed during convalescence a great deal of it can be supplied in eggs, preferably cooked, milk and ground meat. Starchy foods, sugars and fats have a protein sparing action and, of course, enough of these foods should be given so that most of the protein taken will be utilized for tissue repair and not for furnishing energy to the body.

Because of the limited number of foods which can be taken by a convalescent patient, a vitamin deficiency may develop. Hence, the vitamin should be supplied by such preparations which the doctor will prescribe. Attention to these details of the convalescent diet may often shorten the period of illness and recovery.

Writer Bets Hoover Was Given Food Job | Former President Has Had Wide Experience

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

● WASHINGTON—Herbert Hoover came back to the White House for more than a social call.

For the first time in more than 12 years, he crossed the threshold that used to be his own front door step when he was president of the United States.

In the years that have intervened since he rode down to the Capitol to see his successor, Franklin Roosevelt, take the oath of office for the world's number one job, Hoover has learned little of the technique of being a smart politician or playing up to the press. You knew that the instant he stepped from his car in front of the executive offices of the White House and waved the photographers away.

Herbert Hoover

He was also far from chummy when he told the news people: "I cannot discuss matters which are the affairs of the president of the United States."

Even if he wasn't chatty he still looked the able, conscientious American citizen he is when he paused a moment outside Mr. Truman's closed door.

It is my bet—my daily double since the ban on racing has been lifted—that not only has Hoover been offered the post of feeding Europe, but that he has accepted the offer.

Mr. Truman would not have asked the former president to come to Washington for a publicly-known conference if he had not had a definite offer to make. Nor would Hoover have come so cheerfully if he had not been prepared to accept the offer.

It is my guess that all the preliminaries for a new Hoover post had been arranged before he saw the president. During the 40-minute conference with the chief executive, the details were settled upon.

It would be a wise decision to use Hoover's gifts and experience in devastated, hungry Europe. His success as food administrator in Europe after the first World war has never been questioned. Many people have believed it a waste of first class, much-needed material to let Hoover's talents go unused so long.

The former president, who is the only living ex-president, appeared very fit. He made few visits to Washington during Roosevelt's administrations. Everybody who saw Hoover yesterday said he looked better than he had for many a day.

● ONE OF THE STUPIDITIES for which some members of Congress will have to answer come next election day is the haggling that goes on when an appropriation for a hospital is sought. Congress appropriates hundreds of millions of dollars for destruction. It pays expense accounts of hundreds of thousands of dollars for trips to Europe, Asia and Africa in order that some of its members may gaze on destruction.

But it goes niggardly over the prospect of a modest appropriation for much needed housing and care of sick people in the District of Columbia.

I listened to such goings on in the hearings before the House District committee on whether the proposed Medical Center should have this number of beds or that number of beds! The objections to the hospital and to increasing the number of hospital beds in the District sounded so silly. Everybody knows there are not enough hospitals in the District now. Everybody knows that Washington and the neighborhoods over the District line are growing so fast you can't keep up with the population on an adding machine.

Fire Hazards Said to Be Terrific

A Medical Center such as Senator Millard Tydings is trying to get would combine three hospitals. It will operate with modern equipment at the cost of one. Should there be a fire in any one of the three hospitals I've mentioned—in fact in almost any hospital in the capital of the nation—there would be a holocaust that would disgrace the country. The fire hazards in the Washington hospitals are so terrific the mere telling of them makes one ill with fear.

SYNOPSIS

TERRY ARNOLD, a young Vermont newspaperwoman, has written a fairly successful novel. To gather material for a second book she has gone to the Argentine, her subject matter to be the wealthy playboy set of that Latin-American country.

Other characters are:

BROOKS KIMBERLY, owner of Ultimo Ventura, a race horse;

CORINNE ARTIGAS, Kimberly's fiancee, and

RAFF CORDOBA, architect and friend of Kimberly.

YESTERDAY: Terry decides that the South American idea of marriage is much more to her liking than the "separate career" type of marriage which she and Fitz Turner had planned. She also gets a good look at a $20,000 China bull.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

TERRY STEPPED into the stable and stared about it with startled eyes. Unconsciously she had been thinking of her uncle's stable in Vermont—old, smelling of musty hay, cattle and old leather, eerie with the slanting rays of a lantern.

This was something different. A compartment clean enough to live in, with spotless paint on walls and ceiling, and shining scrubbed floor. Electric lights had been shaded to soften their rays. Sandy, the mayordomo, a stranger who must be MacDougal, the veterinarian, and three grooms, were working over the huge animal. Terry slipped into the circle. They nodded to her absently and went on with their work of keeping the heaving animal covered with electric pads and blankets.

China was a magnificent beast. Terry could see the noble lines of the head, even though his mouth was open in a labored effort to breathe and his eyes were feverish and bloodshot.

"What's wrong with it?" Terry asked.

"Pneumonia," Sandy told her dryly.

"Don't you think we could give him another shot of the sulfa?" MacDouglas looked up at them.

The mayordomo looked at China, considering, then turned to Terry.

"Dinner's over up at the house, is it?"

"Yes," Terry said.

"Brooks told me to call the house if there was anything—"

Terry smothered an impulsive grin. She had been about to offer to go for Brooks. Of course, this stable would have a telephone system connected with the house. Undoubtedly China himself was in the habit of calling the kitchen for his tea!

MacDougal said quietly, "You should call him, I believe."

Sandy was starting toward the door leading to the center corridor of the stables when a striding step sounded outside.

"Wait a bit!" MacDougal called.

Sandy turned, then relaxed, as Brooks appeared in the doorway. He came over and dropped to one knee beside the bull, examined its eyes, listened to its breathing.

"He's worse," he said shortly.

"Yes," Sandy came back. "Temperature's up a degree. And he's losing strength fast."

"What about the sulfa?"

The three of them discussed it, decided on another injection. Terry watched the process, fascinated. Never was there any more efficiency and tension in a human sick chamber.

China heaved suddenly and turned over, scattering hot pads and blankets. Sandy thrust the injector he was sterilizing into Terry's hands and rushed to help recover the beast.

When the excitement was over it was Brooks who came for the instrument. He noticed Terry for the first time.

"What are you doing down here?" He smiled at her vaguely as he sterilized the needle and went back.

For a while after the injection they watched the bull's tossing head in tense silence. After a while Sandy mumbled, "I'm athinkin' we did that in good time, Brooks."

MacDougal nodded. "It looks to me like he's gettin' near the crisis."

Terry mused, "If they only had oxygen tents for bulls!"

Brooks said shortly, "They're flying one out now from Buenos Aires."

Terry gave him a quick look. He wasn't smiling. None of the others were either. But of course, she chided herself, they would have oxygen tanks for bulls! She was just an old-fashioned city girl.

Time went on. Terry forgot she had dropped in for a peek at an expensive animal. She was as engrossed as the others now in the fatal drama of China's hoarse breathing. Unconsciously she was urging the animal on in its heartbreaking efforts for each breath. She was taking her turn with the others in pulling back the blankets, adjusting the hot pads when the animal tossed.

The crisis was almost on them now. The tense men agreed on it with silent nods. Grooms rushed about on emergency errands, bringing oil for the beast's tongue, bringing ice packs, more hot pads, more blankets. Brooks, Sandy and MacDougal were working over the animal with every skill they knew.

It was at this crucial minute that the outside door opened. Faint music from the mansion drifted in like the memory of another world. Terry glanced up, and caught her breath.

Corinne was in the doorway, fragile and exquisite in her black sequined gown, her voice frosty. "So you came down to the stables!"

Brooks walked over to shut the door behind her. "China's bad. Can't have any cold air right now." He turned again and went back to take his position beside the tossing head of the beast.

Corinne caught her breath. Terry saw the flash of fire in the velvet black depths of her eyes. She crossed to Brooks and murmured, "I work for weeks to get those three men down here to talk to you. And you leave in the middle of their questions. You walk out without a word, to stay with a bull! Aren't you interested in your political career?"

Brooks said tensely, not taking his eyes from the bull. "I can't neglect my livestock."

Corinne lost all patience. "Sandy can watch him. And what if China does die! Even that's not as important as your impressing De Valdero!"

"De Valdero should be impressed by how a man does his own work. If he isn't—then it isn't important to impress him."

Corrine forgot everything and everyone then in her fury. Her voice rose in a scream of anger.

"Brooks Kimberly, are you coming?"

Brooks turned and looked at her, his face expressionless. Terry waited, fascinated, for his decision. But she was not to know it. At that instant Sandy's voice cut into the tense silence.

"This is it! It's the turnin' point."

Brooks gaze was back on China. Even Terry was too excited to watch Corinne's reaction. Vaguely she heard the door slam as the girl went out.

"The Authority on Authorities"

COUNTER THEIR BLOWS

THERE IS no profit in whining that the opponents put up the best possible defense against you, whereas they gave some other declarer in the duplicate an easy way to make his contract, plus perhaps an extra trick or so, with bad defense. Maybe you merely should have altered your own plan for play and, by greater skill, could have gained the same result anyway. And isn't it more satisfactory to get your good scores as a just reward for your own good work, instead of as mere gifts?

	♠ K Q 4 3 ♥ 7 5 ♦ A K 10 8 3 ♣ 6 2
♠ 7 6 ♥ K J 10 6 3 ♦ 9 2 ♣ J 8 5 3	N W E S	♠ A J 10 8 ♥ 9 8 2 ♦ Q 7 6 4 ♣ 10 9

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦
Pass	2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

That bid was repeated at several tables of a duplicate, and at others South jumped immediately into the 3-No Trumps after hearing the spade bid. But not all of the declarers made the contract.

At one table West led his heart J to the Q. South led the diamond J, which East allowed to win. The diamond A and K then won, and the Q took the 10, setting up the 8. The heart 9 to the 10 made the defense's second trick, and the K knocked out the A. The spade 2 was led to the Q, the A winning the third defense trick. No matter what East returned, the spade K was a dummy entry to score the diamond 8, so South scored one trick in spades, two in hearts, four in diamonds and three in clubs for a total of ten.

One South complained that West beat him with the best lead, a spade. Dummy won the third, and he could get only three diamonds because he had no re-entry to dummy, so tried the heart finesse to build a ninth trick. So he lost two hearts, a club, a diamond and a spade, and was down one.

But where another declarer got the spade re-entry killed early, he scored three diamonds and three clubs, then led a fourth club to West, who had to return a heart, giving South two tricks there, plus his last club, for 10 tricks. There were several other variations, some declarers making exactly game and some being set a trick after a spade lead.

If South makes the mistake of using his spade A over the K on the first trick, what is his best remaining chance to make 3-No Trumps on this deal?

Swagger Coat Dress

A FINE cotton sateen with a sheen which any tablecloth could envy makes this coat dress of white with either blue or red cross bar pattern. Big buttons fasten the skirt closing, and decorate big, bias cut pockets which detail the blouse.

The frock is a washtub natural, and is so inexpensive that one could afford it for a house working costume even though it is quite good and smart enough for general summer wear outside one's own four walls.

THREE AWAIT RESCUE FROM 'SHANGRI LA'

MANILA, June 8—Twenty persons were killed when a C47 transport plane crashed into a New Guinea "Shangri La" last month, the Army revealed today, but three aboard survived and soon will be brought out of the lost world.

An officer, an enlisted man and a WAC—the only survivors of the big transport plane crash—are under medical care while awaiting completion of an emergency air strip from which they can be flown out of the hidden valley in the Oranje mountains of Dutch New Guinea.

Filipino medical technicians parachuted into the valley as soon as the wreckage of the C47 was found. The plane crashed in the wilds on May 13 while on a routine flight.

The announcement was held up until next of kin of the victims were notified.

INDIANS KEEP LEAD; BIRDS LOSE IN 15TH

By United Press

The league-leading Indianapolis Indians retained their one-and-a-half game lead over Louisville today after splitting a doubleheader with the second division St. Paul club. An American Association contest between Louisville and Minneapolis was rained out.

The Indians lost the opener, 3 to 1, but knocked out a 5 to 3 victory in the nightcap. The teams were tied for hits in both games, scoring seven in the first and six each in the second.

Third-place Milwaukee battled a one-all tie score with Columbus for 15 innings before batting in two runs to win, 3 to 1. Milwaukee's Owen Scheetz took the credit.

At Toledo, the Mud Hens and Kansas City Blues split a double bill. Toledo eked out a 4 to 3 win after trailing 3-0, while Edson Barr, recently-discharged Army veteran, led the Blues to a 6 to 4 victory in the second game.

Chicago's post office handles more domestic money orders and a larger number of parcels than any other city in the world.

In 1944, the United States produced 7,859,400 tons of 25 commercial truck crops for the fresh market, compared with the average of 6,390,000 tons a year during the 10-year-period of 1933-42.

HOLMES PACES BRAVES WITH .390 AVERAGE

Errors Help Reds Win 7-3; Cards Take Second Place; Chisox Pushed Out

NEW YORK, June 8 — The sturdy wrists that brought Tommy Holmes a national juvenile bag-punching championship as a five-year-old were reviving pennant hopes of the Braves today and making him a good bet to win the National League batting title.

He is one of the most sought after players in the majors with reliable reports saying the Cubs have offered as much as $80,000 for him, possibly to replace Bill Nicholson, their own ace slugger, if he goes into military service.

Now in his fourth season with the Braves it is wrist-action hitting that has given him a fancy average of .390 and enabled him to rattle Philly hurlers for 10 hits in two days and to set the pace for the majors in hits, 64, and in runs, with 40.

Yesterday was a typical day for the Brooklyn - born 27-year-old star, who might have become a champion boxer had not his parents persuaded him to lay down the padded gloves for a ball and bat.

He made five hits as the Braves won twice, 3 to 1 and 7 to 3, extending the Phils' losing streak to 11 games, longest of the season. He drove in three runs and scored two himself, making it easy for pitchers Jim Tobin and Tom Earley to win from the fading Phils.

Holmes, whose baseball began with the Brooklyn Bay Parkway sandlotters, the same team which gave the majors Hank Greenberg, Buddy Hassett and Pete Gray, once agais is "learning" to hit, but his wrist-action adaptability makes it easy for him to pick up valuable pointers. In 1937 at Norfolk in the Piedmont league, Manager Johnny Neun converted him from a left-handed pull hitter to a choke batter who could hit to all fields. That took away his prowess as a homer hitter, but boosted his average. Now, Boston coach, Del Bissonette, has taught him to pull the ball again. He still hits to any field the occasion demands, but is hitting more homers.

The Giants won a "gift" victory from the Dodgers at the Polo grounds, 10 to 5, scoring eight unearned runs on eight Brooklyn errors. Dodgers pitchers also contributed to the delinquency with two wild pitches, seven walks and a hit batsman. Catcher Clyde Sukeforth had a passed ball and the winning Giant pitcher, Van Mungo got into the "spirit" of things with two wild pitches and three walks.

Errors also helped Cincinnati to a 7 to 3 victory at Pittsburgh. Veteran Joe Bowman had it easy in winning his second game since coming from the Red Sox.

The Cards topped the Cubs at St. Louis, 6 to 4, to go into second place. Cub third baseman, Stan Hack, made his first error of the season on a hard ground ball after handling 159 chances cleanly. Rookie Jack Creel, with relief help from Harry Brecheen, gained his fourth victory. Elvin (Buster) Adams hit a two-run homer, his eighth of the season, for the Cards.

The Browns knocked the White Sox out of the first division for the first time this season, winning two at Chicago, 6 to 0 and 6 to 2. Jack Kramer had a seven-hit shutout in the first game and Newman (Tex) Shirley, finally getting some hitting support, won handily as the Browns teed off on two pitchers for 13 hits.

The Tigers closed in on the leading Yankees, winning 3 to 2 behind Hal Newhouser at Cleveland, to go within a game of first place. Newhouser, winning his seventh game, fashioned a five-hitter. Detroit made five of its 11 singles in the seventh to score all its runs.

The Red Sox swept their four games with the Athletics at Boston, winning the finale, 5 to 4, as Outfielder Bob Johnson provided the margin with a two-run homer. Bob Garbark broke up the game in the 10th with a bases loaded single which scored Pete Fox. Veteran Relief Pitcher Mike Ryba was the winner.

New York and Washington had an open date in the American.

WEATHER MAY CUT DERBY LIST

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 8—They came down to the money-costing stage of the Kentucky Derby today with the weather the deciding factor in the size of the field.

With more rain forecast it was indicated that the field for the 71st annual running of the Blue Grass classic would be cut from 17 probable starters to 13.

Those on the doubtful list were Fair Jester, Burning Dream, Kenilworth Lad, and Jacobe. The 13 which seemed certain to go were Jeep, Hoop Jr., Pot O'Luck, Alexis, Darby Dieppe, Air Sailor, Fighting Step, Bymeabond Sea Swallow, Foreign Agent, Tiger Rebel, Misweet and Bert G.

Track conditions seem certain to result in the withdrawal of Burning Dream, Col. E. R. Bradley's hope for his fifth Kentucky Derby victory, Fair Jester and Kenilworth Lad. Jacobe, who did not weather the shipping from New York, was put in the class of doubtful starters, regardless of track conditions.

As they came down to the case of putting up the $500 entry fee or cancelling their colors in the biggest race of the year, Darby Dieppe was winning the belated support of those turf followers who like the horses which prefer heavy going.

His winning performance in the Blue Grass stakes last Saturday when the track was heavy was gaining the colt backers, and Charley Gentry, his trainer, was praying for more rain. Although satisfied that the speedy son of Sir Gallahad 3rd could run any kind of a track, Gentry said: "He likes mud."

The odds on Dieppe shortened to 6 to 1 when the gooey conditions under which he won his final Derby trial appeared to be in line for tomorrow's renewal of the Churchill Downs classic. Despite the fact that the Downs turf is fast-drying and can easily become lightning fast with 24 hours of sunshine, the chances are that it will be no better than "slow".

But no matter what the conditions of the track come tomorrow evening, it's certain that the customers will choose their mutuel favorite from either of the three currently hotter choices—Jeep, Hoop Jr., and Pot O'Luck.

PROBABLE DERBY STARTERS

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 8—Probable field for Saturday's Kentucky Derby with owners, jockeys and probable odds:

CONFERENCE SPEED UP FOLLOWS AGREEMENT OF BIG FIVE ON VETO

SAN FRANCISCO, June 8—Premier Josef Stalin's approval of freedom of discussion in the proposed world security council broke a dangerous big five deadlock today and started a new drive for early adjournment of the United Nations conference.

Officials immediately stepped up the daily program and aimed at completion of the world charter within two weeks.

The big five were united again after nearly a week of a 4 to 1 split over whether a big power should have a veto over council discussion of a dispute. Russia's capitulation on that issue came after President Truman's special representative in Moscow, Harry L. Hopkins, appealed personally to Stalin.

Big five experts worked late into the night to draft a paper for presentation to the conference today setting forth their unanimous interpretation of the Yalta voting formula. The paper—about three pages long and consisting of about a dozen paragraphs—is designed to answer the 22 questions about the Yalta formula submitted by the little nations nearly three weeks ago.

The big five paper sets forth for the first time a list of "procedural questions"—questions on which only a majority of any seven members of the 11-nation security council is needed for a decision.

The interpretation of the big five of the Yalta formula is divided into four main points as follows:

1. It states unequivocally that any question which might arise about discussion in the council is a procedural question and thus not subject to the rule of unanimity—veto—of the big five powers.

2. It argues that while the Yalta formula calls for unanimity of the big five on most decisions and action, its form is limited as compared with the old League of Nations where all members had to agree to a decision. It contends that the Yalta formula offers less obstruction to positive action by the new organization than the league's rule of unanimity.

3. It argues that in a strong organization the great powers must always concur in matters that are so serious as to affect the peace of the world.

4. It sets forth for the first time the following as procedural questions: fixing the council's rules of procedure; method of selecting president of council; organization of the council so it can function continuously; the choice of times and places for meeting; the creation of subordinate agencies of the council; invitation to states not on the council to join discussions.

Russia's decision to abandon her demand was said to have been done in the spirit of bowing to majority opinion and in the interest of maintaining big five unanimity.

"If a point on which we disagree with you is proved to us," a Russian delegate said, "and we seek and feel that it is based on good will and justified desires, we will agree to it. That has happened on this issue. You have convinced us and we have agreed. Our policy has never been inflexible."

Behind the Russian change, however, was the story of Hopkins-Stalin negotiations and the decision of Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., to have Hopkins lay the U. S. cards on the table with the Russian leader.

Stettinius talked with President Truman. The President authorized Stettinius to make his own decision on how to solve the crisis. By last Sunday night, Stettinius' decision was made and a cable was en route to Averell Harriman, U. S. ambassador in Moscow.

The Stettinius cable suggested that Harriman and Hopkins present the problem to Stalin. The cable was described as earnest and serious in tone, suggesting that Stalin be told frankly of the embarassment the Russian position would cause the United States if it prevailed.

Hopkins and Harriman took up the job from there. It was understood that Hopkins described to Stalin how awkward it would be to obtain U. S. senate ratification of a charter in which there was any question of the right of the security council to consider and discuss a dispute.

The result was immediate acceptance by Stalin of the U. S. point of view and new instructions to the Soviet delegation.

The climax of the crisis came quickly late yesterday. Soviet delegate Andrei Gromyko asked for a meeting of the big five. Gromyko announced his government's new position and the restoration of unanimity. A meeting of the steering committee on which all nations are represented was called and Stettinius made the announcement amidst great applause and cheers.

"The agreement reached," Stettinius said, "preserves the principle of the unanimity of the permanent members of the council in all actions taken by the council, while at the same time assuring freedom of hearing and discussion in the council before action is taken. We believe both are essential to the success of the world organization."

LUTHERAN MEN HOLD MEETING AT COUNTY HOME

First outdoor meeting of the Lutheran Brotherhood was held at the Pickaway county home Thursday evening. Superintendent James Mowery and Mrs. Mowery were hosts to the group.

Preceding a lunch served on the lawn by the lunch committee headed by Mr. Mowery, teams of men of the brotherhood and Cub scouts played ball games against Boy Scouts. Norbert Cochran and a group of Scout leaders were in charge of the boys.

After lunch the Cubs and Scouts presented the following program: Cub and Scout salute to flag, oath, law and song; investiture ceremony and camping activities.

The Rev. George Troutman announced 200 children were attending the Bible school. The meeting closed with singing of "God Bless America" and benediction by the Rev. Mr. Troutman.

Next meeting will be held July 5 at the home of Wayne Hoover.

MEDICAL CENTER GAINS APPROVAL OF COMMITTEE

COLUMBUS, June 8 — The House finance committee has approved a $5,000,000 appropriation for a new medical research center at Ohio State university.

The Medical center appropriation was added to the capital improvements bill which now will make a total of $71,731,448 available for new state buildings, public improvements and parks and forests as soon as labor and materials are available.

Under the bill, all state revenues in excess of the $332,000,000 estimated by State Finance Director Herbert D. Defenbacher will go into a "postwar reserve fund" which will be "frozen" for future use. It was estimated this fund would total about $66,000,000.

Also added to the bill was $242,500 for buildings at the Ohio Agricultural Research Station at Wooster and $200,000 for a new men's dormitory at Kent State university.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Robert Montgomery, screen star and Lieut. Cmdr., USNR (inactive), asked to be cast as the war doctor on the June 19 story to be dramatized on "The Doctor Fights," because of his recent close contact with physicians on the fighting fronts. In 1940 he was an ambulance driver for the American Field Service in France until the country was overrun by the Germans. Returning to the U. S. Montgomery took a navy commission and served overseas for more than four years.

FBI DRAMA

"The Marauders," a gang of plunderers who try to bring peonage to the Southwest, are battled by "The FBI in Peace and War" on Saturday. The exciting drama comes from the pen of Frederick L. Collins, author of the authoritative book, "The FBI in Peace and War."

CARTER SOLVES CELL DEATH

All the skill and ingenuity at the disposal of "Nick Carter—Master Detective" is needed on the broadcast Sunday, when a state hospital inmate escapes after a guard has been killed in the patient's cell. All the evidence clearly points to the escaped man, but Carter believes differently, and in a mystifying melange of clues and suspects he succeeds in uncovering diabolical doings in "Murder in Cell 17."

J. Carroll Naish, who stars in "Footfalls," on the "Suspense" mystery drama series June 28, was telling Producer Bill Spier that the unusual spelling of his last name used to confuse people until he hit upon an easy way to explain the prnunciation. "Just think of the phrase 'gnash your teeth,' said the actor. "Then remove the 'g,' capitalize the 'N' and put an 'i' between the 'a' and the 's'—and you have my name, Naish. Simple, eh?"

EX GI'S PROBLEMS AIRED

Even the normal veteran, returning to civilian life, has a problem, and that fact will be dramatized on the Army Service Forces "Assignment Home," in its broadcast Saturday. Most returning service men, on getting their honorable discharge, seek new, better jobs in their old home towns. Many of them find no market for their newly acquired skills in their own communities, but have to accept employment either at or below their old standards, or in other towns.

When Bob Matthews, new singer on Abbott and Costello's airshow, heard that he was to be featured on the same program as Warbler Connie Haines he said: "Wow! Now my fame in radio is really assured!" Reason for Bob's pleasure (aside from the fact that Connie's a very pretty girl) is that at one time she was the singing partner of two other fellows who eventually did rather well in radio—Andy Russell and Frank Sinatra!

Radio has taken a leaf from Hollywood in the matter of frequent changes of show titles. Take the "Leave It to Mike" program which stars Walter Kinsella, the roguish broguish Sgt. Mullins of "Mr. and Mrs. North." The new show bowed in as "For the Love of Mike," changed to "For the Love of Pete," then became "Paging Mike MacNally" before switching to its present title. Now plans are under way to make it just plain "Mike."

MOSCOW, June 7—A Soviet Tass agency dispatch from Warsaw said today that Polish authorities have arrested Paul Hoffman, former head of the German death camp at Miadenek.

CONFERENCE SPEED UP FOLLOWS AGREEMENT OF BIG FIVE ON VETO

SAN FRANCISCO, June 8—Premier Josef Stalin's approval of freedom of discussion in the proposed world security council broke a dangerous big five deadlock today and started a new drive for early adjournment of the United Nations conference.

Officials immediately stepped up the daily program and aimed at completion of the world charter within two weeks.

The big five were united again after nearly a week of a 4 to 1 split over whether a big power should have a veto over council discussion of a dispute. Russia's capitulation on that issue came after President Truman's special representative in Moscow, Harry L. Hopkins, appealed personally to Stalin.

Big five experts worked late into the night to draft a paper for presentation to the conference today setting forth their unanimous interpretation of the Yalta voting formula. The paper—about three pages long and consisting of about a dozen paragraphs—is designed to answer the 22 questions about the Yalta formula submitted by the little nations nearly three weeks ago.

The big five paper sets forth for the first time a list of "procedural questions"—questions on which only a majority of any seven members of the 11-nation security council is needed for a decision.

The interpretation of the big five of the Yalta formula is divided into four main points as follows:

1. It states unequivocally that any question which might arise about discussion in the council is a procedural question and thus not subject to the rule of unanimity—veto—of the big five powers.

2. It argues that while the Yalta formula calls for unanimity of the big five on most decisions and action, its form is limited as compared with the old League of Nations where all members had to agree to a decision. It contends that the Yalta formula offers less obstruction to positive action by the new organization than the league's rule of unanimity.

3. It argues that in a strong organization the great powers must always concur in matters that are so serious as to affect the peace of the world.

4. It sets forth for the first time the following as procedural questions: fixing the council's rules of procedure; method of selecting president of council; organization of the council so it can function continuously; the choice of times and places for meeting; the creation of subordinate agencies of the council; invitation to states not on the council to join discussions.

Russia's decision to abandon her demand was said to have been done in the spirit of bowing to majority opinion and in the interest of maintaining big five unanimity.

"If a point on which we disagree with you is proved to us," a Russian delegate said, "and we seek and feel that it is based on good will and justified desires, we will agree to it. That has happened on this issue. You have convinced us and we have agreed. Our policy has never been inflexible."

Behind the Russian change, however, was the story of Hopkins-Stalin negotiations and the decision of Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., to have Hopkins lay the U. S. cards on the table with the Russian leader.

Stettinius talked with President Truman. The President authorized Stettinius to make his own decision on how to solve the crisis. By last Sunday night, Stettinius' decision was made and a cable was en route to Averell Harriman, U. S. ambassador in Moscow.

The Stettinius cable suggested that Harriman and Hopkins present the problem to Stalin. The cable was described as earnest and serious in tone, suggesting that Stalin be told frankly of the embarassment the Russian position would cause the United States if it prevailed.

Hopkins and Harriman took up the job from there. It was understood that Hopkins described to Stalin how awkward it would be to obtain U. S. senate ratification of a charter in which there was any question of the right of the security council to consider and discuss a dispute.

The result was immediate acceptance by Stalin of the U. S. point of view and new instructions to the Soviet delegation.

The climax of the crisis came quickly late yesterday. Soviet delegate Andrei Gromyko asked for a meeting of the big five. Gromyko announced his government's new position and the restoration of unanimity. A meeting of the steering committee on which all nations are represented was called and Stettinius made the announcement amidst great applause and cheers.

"The agreement reached," Stettinius said, "preserves the principle of the unanimity of the permanent members of the council in all actions taken by the council, while at the same time assuring freedom of hearing and discussion in the council before action is taken. We believe both are essential to the success of the world organization."

LUTHERAN MEN HOLD MEETING AT COUNTY HOME

First outdoor meeting of the Lutheran Brotherhood was held at the Pickaway county home Thursday evening. Superintendent James Mowery and Mrs. Mowery were hosts to the group.

Preceding a lunch served on the lawn by the lunch committee headed by Mr. Mowery, teams of men of the brotherhood and Cub scouts played ball games against Boy Scouts. Norbert Cochran and a group of Scout leaders were in charge of the boys.

After lunch the Cubs and Scouts presented the following program: Cub and Scout salute to flag, oath, law and song; investiture ceremony and camping activities.

The Rev. George Troutman announced 200 children were attending the Bible school. The meeting closed with singing of "God Bless America" and benediction by the Rev. Mr. Troutman.

Next meeting will be held July 5 at the home of Wayne Hoover.

MEDICAL CENTER GAINS APPROVAL OF COMMITTEE

COLUMBUS, June 8 — The House finance committee has approved a $5,000,000 appropriation for a new medical research center at Ohio State university.

The Medical center appropriation was added to the capital improvements bill which now will make a total of $71,731,448 available for new state buildings, public improvements and parks and forests as soon as labor and materials are available.

Under the bill, all state revenues in excess of the $332,000,000 estimated by State Finance Director Herbert D. Defenbacher will go into a "postwar reserve fund" which will be "frozen" for future use. It was estimated this fund would total about $66,000,000.

Also added to the bill was $242,500 for buildings at the Ohio Agricultural Research Station at Wooster and $200,000 for a new men's dormitory at Kent State university.
